Monogram club, DKL society tie in 1962 'Stuff' club of year competition

By LEONARD PALICKI

Stuff's annual achievement award and its cash prize of $50, presented to the outstanding campus club of the year, will be divided between the Monogram club and Digamma Kappa Lambda Society this year.

Each receiving six ballot points, DKL and the Monogram club were second by the Glee club with four points, followed by the Accounting club with two points.

Two anonymous faculty members each nominated three of the reporting clubs. Then Student Council President Dennis Mudd, Inter-club Chairman Bob Urig, and Stuff editor John Babione voted on the basis of these nominations, each selecting the top three clubs on campus. Three points were awarded for a first place vote, two for a second, and one for a third.

The award is based on the activities of the club during the past year that contributed to the welfare of its members, and its own general improvement.

The Monogram club has strived to build school spirit, broaden the interest of its own members, improve public relations of the school, and build the character of athletes to create a more favorable impression of them among the student body.

To attain these goals, the club has provided ushers for various campus events, including Sunday and holiday masses. Three well-organized initiations for new members were staged during the year. Members of the club also put on skits at two football pep rallies.

The club sponsored its annual Orphan's Day on December 10, conducting games in the field-house, showing movies, and providing lunch and supper as well as gifts for 60 boys from Hoosier Boys' Town. Members also visited the Carmeline Home in Hammond and gave a Christmas party there, giving individual gifts to each child.

Digamma Kappa Lambda, the biology-chemistry club, aimed for the academic improvement of its members and sponsored several activities of interest to the student body. The car crunch and meeting at which guest speakers appeared were open to the students.

The club donated 16 pints of blood to the Little Company of Mary Hospital, maintained window displays in the auditorium lobby, and re-activated its own tutoring service.

Contest winners, honor students feted in Parents Day program

The annual Parents Day program was held Sunday, May 6, on the St. Joseph's campus. The program was highlighted by the presentation of awards at 2:00 Sunday afternoon.

Those attending the awards presentation heard an address by Father Raphael Gross, president of the college. The college band, under the direction of Adam Lesinsky, and the SJC Glee club, under the direction of Father Heiman, entertained the visitors.

Father Gross emphasized the overwhelming problem that faces the colleges and universities of the future, the problem of being able to adequately cope with the increasing enrollment in institutions of higher education.

Father Gross said that this problem exists at St. Joseph's along with a more significant financial problem which has been caused by the new construction on campus. He was referring to the new residence halls and the faculty house and student center that are now being erected.

A fund-raising program, which would be partially financed by alumni, parents, new friends and benefactors, was outlined by Father Gross. He said it would help defray expansion expenses. The campaign is being called the Diamond Jubilee Fund, and will extend over the next two or three years.

In a closing remark, Father Gross said that he wanted to help St. Joseph's college become better in quality and quantity, but he added that it must have the ardent support of everyone.

The awards presented were as follows:

Certificates were presented to the 22 seniors who were chosen by their classmates to represent the 1962 graduating class in the list of "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities."

Ahler named valedictorian

Kenneth J. Ahler, a bio-chemistry major from Medaryville, Ind., has been named valedictorian of the 1962 graduating class. The honor was determined and announced at a meeting of the college academic senate May 4.

Ahler started at St. Joseph's in the fall semester, 1958, after finishing his secondary education at Medaryville high school, where he was also valedictorian of his graduating class.

While at St. Joe's, Ahler has been a member of the band and Delta Epsilon Sigma, the national Catholic honor society. He was also a member and vice president of Digamma Kappa Lambda, a biology and chemistry society.

Ahler will deliver the valedictory address at commencement exercises June 3. He will enter the Indiana university school of medicine next fall.

Frosh, sophs, dates enjoy busy Hop weekend

By AUDREY URBANCZYK

Social life was briefly restored to the Pumasville scene last weekend when about 100 Puma frosh and sophs capitalized on a St. Joe rarity—a dance weekend.

For a few lucky Pumas whose dates arrived early, the all-too-short weekend began on Friday evening in the auditorium with the Columbian Players' second presentation of "The Hasty Heart."

On Saturday evening the "sound of music" filled the auditorium as the St. Xavier college chorus and the St. Joe glee club ushered in spring with due frivolity. And this was but a prelude to the night's activities.

Greeting frosh-soph dancegoers in the Rec hall parking lot was a delegation of horses and riders from the local saddle club. (Brother Larry and Jo-Jo, the pride of St. Joe stables, were there in lieu of Willie Hartack and Decidedly.)

The Rec hall was gaily bedecked in a Churchill Downs setting. Over the outside entrance was a horseshoe-shaped rose arbor.

Inside, horse silhouettes, red and white streamers, artificial roses, and waiters dressed as jockies contributed to the equestrian atmosphere. A clubhouse which sheltered several tables was constructed near the center of the Rec hall.

The New Upperclassmen 15 piece group, led by jiving Jim Von Bampus, provided the evening entertainment. (Continued on Page 4)

Band set for 'Pop' concert next Thursday

By JOE BOTON

St. Joseph's spring "pop" concert will be presented by the college band on Thursday, May 17, at 8:15 p.m., in the college auditorium. The band is directed by Adam P. Lesinsky.

"Broadway Comes to St. Joe" is the theme that will pervade this year's "pop" concert for the featured numbers of the program will be selections from three Broadway musicals. From Jule Styne's "Gypsy" the band will present "Everything's Coming Up Roses," "Small World," "You'll Never Get Away From Me," and "Together, Wherever We Go."

The band will also play "Give A Little Whistle," "One Day We Dance," "What Takes My Fancy," "You've Come Home," and "Hey, Look Me Over," from Leigh and Colman's "Wildcat." From Lerner and Lowe's "Camelot" will be presented "Camelot," "Follow Me," "I Loved You Once In Silence," and "If Ever I Would Leave You."

James Von Bampus, a senior and a composition student of Mr. Paul Tonner, will begin the second half of the "pop" concert by conducting the band's rendition of Von Bampus' own composition, the "Puma March."

Other numbers on the program will include the theme from "The Magnificent Seven," by Elmer Bernstein; "Silhouettes," a medley of Jerome Kern melodies; "A Melodic Caravan," a medley (Continued on Page 4)

Downard elected senior president

By RUSSELL CARSON

William L. Downard, a history major from Cincinnati, O., was elected to the office of senior class president in the last week's elections.

Winner in the race for vice president was William E. Leib, a business major from Sandusky, O. Jerry Meservey, pre-med student of Chicago, Ill., and James E. McGill, business management major from Port Huron, Mich., were elected to the offices of secretary and treasurer.

None of the races were particularly tight, since the winners all won by a margin averaging about 39 votes. The closest contest was that for the presidency where Downard polled 87 votes to Patrick Bresnahan's 55.

For the vice presidency, Leib defeated Lee Gallaher with a tally of 97 to 48. Meservey won the office of secretary with a majority of 88 votes to William Keenan's 57. A final total of 91 to 51 gave the contest for treasurer to James McGill over William Bloch.

A new broom, it has been said, sweeps clean. At the forthcoming student council meeting a new broom will replace the old—the four newly elected student council officers will be installed.

An inauguration such as this is a time for looking both backward and forward. A view in retrospect of the outgoing council is as much in order as is a view in prospect of the incoming council. And certainly the policies and actions of the retiring council will have some effect on the incoming one, in both the course it will follow and the student attitude it will face.

For the outgoing council this has been a year of much activity, a year of giant-strides in many directions.

One of the largest and most significant steps was the securing of all-night lights for underclassmen. The demand for "lights" was a perennial outcry and satisfying it can certainly be counted as a bright feather in the council's cap.

Another important step was the year-long project of revising the antiquated council constitution. This was truly a mammoth undertaking and the smoothness with which the work was delegated and the sections compiled speaks well for the council's organizational ability.

Other forward steps were the reorganization of the tutoring service, the complete though slightly tardy listing of student complaints, the acquisition of the Pumamobile and the organization of football pep rallies.

On the other hand, this year's council, chiefly through the actions of its president, allied itself so much with the function of its disciplinary committee, that many students came to think of it solely a restrictive rather than a representative body. To these students the council became a near police force, a virtual arm of the office of the dean of men, to be avoided and outwitted, rather than the liaison of student-administration relations it should have been. Its disciplinary function became a cops-and-robbers affair, completely ignoring the salient possibility of being an advisor to aid students in avoiding disciplinary trouble and to mediate for the good of those who violate rules.

The overemphasis on its disciplinary powers alienated so many students from the council that, in the

Pre-parents day repairs 'praised' by SJC student

Dear editor,

As a student here at St. Joe I appreciated greatly and was highly impressed by the great strides taken in general maintenance and campus appearance in the week preceding Parents Day.

I, along with a great number of my fellow students, am somewhat suspicious as to the motives for the improvement. Our suspicions would be quelled, however, if these strides would be extended throughout the year.

Hopefully yours,
Richard J. Morissey

overall view, its good accomplishments were overlooked and any good will toward the council that those accomplishments might have produced was negated.

And that, in short, was the way the old broom swept.

Now the new broom is coming and it will be faced with a twofold problem: on the one hand, following the trail-blazed by the good actions of its predecessor and, on the other, making an abrupt about-face from council disciplinary policy as delineated by this year's actions.

At the very outset this year's incoming student council president has an advantage over the man he succeeds, for he is assured, by his first ballot victory, that he is the first-choice-candidate of well over half of the student body. The man he replaces, however, won his election in a run-off, partially by merit of the support of an eliminated presidential candidate and the other newly elected officers who had won on the first ballot. This vote of confidence given the new president, the assurance of support in sheer numbers, is a healthy start for the fledgling council.

As far as the first part of the twofold problem—the continuing of good actions—is concerned, next year will offer many opportunities and challenges to the new council. It will have to derive its own solutions for both perennial problems and the new ones which will inevitably arise. It will be faced with, for instance, the question of determining the correct balance of date dances and mixers. It will have to cope with the problem of allocating its financial resources in a manner satisfactory to and in the best interests of most of the student body. It will have to deal with the problems spawned by the turmoil earlier this year, a turmoil still not completely dormant. And possibly, if the new student union is completed next year, the council will be faced with problems relating to the use of its facilities.

The second part of the two-fold problem will be even more difficult, for here the council is faced with a matter which encompasses much more than a simple revision of disciplinary policy. The manner in which it handles this problem, a problem which has so spoiled any hope of council-student rapport this year, will determine, in the eyes of many students, how much of its lost respect the council can regain. And to successfully meet this challenge the council will have to do much more than simply abandon this year's policies and re-adopt those of two or three years ago. Positive steps must be taken to institute a disciplinary program which will show the student body that the new council can cope with the problem which is the sole blight on the record of the old.

May the new broom sweep clean.

"The Hasty Heart" of the Columbian Players, last Friday night, was a bit hasty in parts, and probably not as heart-tugging as author John Patrick might have wished it to be, but the Players left few bones for a critic to pick on, and my overall impression of the production was favorable.

The moral of the play was not too difficult to pick out, if one could stop reminiscing long enough about the comedy to give the moral a fair amount of serious consideration. The comedy, incidentally, seemed to be a problem for the actors (and actress) also: Miss Scharf (Sister Margaret), for example, apparently had trouble restraining the impulse to giggle in the humor situations, and Jim Hattermer nearly ruptured the corners of his mouth after he had advised Lachie to keep his kilt on—but who can blame them?

The laughs were well provoked, and Pat Bresnahan, as Tommy, entertained everybody, including himself, by the fine contorting of his "relaxed" face muscles and kept everybody in stitches, as the saying goes, with more than one kind of needling.

Stan Dworak (Lachie) "di'na ha'e nae troob'l" with his Scottish accent; or at least it was good enough that it neither distracted me nor made me wonder what Lachie was saying. Stan gave a standout performance, and only the faucet-drip monotony of his dour expression stood between him and an Oscar. Perhaps the chipped-granite scowl was what the script, and Mr. Walsh, called for; but it was sheer relief to see Stan smile during the curtain calls.

After Dworak, Joe Quigley had about the best of the Commonwealth accents, though all of them were good (thanks, I suppose, to Mrs. Fendig). Even if they sometimes were a trifle too thick and sometimes forgotten, the dialects of Digger (Gene Ognibene), Kiwi (Quigley), the Colonel (Ron Liszkowski), the orderly (Tony Gies), Sister Margaret, Lachie, and Tommy were at least as convincing as Hattermer's, who came by his by being born in Atlanta, Georgia. Quigley's accent, however, good as it was, contained faint echoes off the far-off hills of Eire, somewhat outlandish-sounding on the tongue of a New Zealander.

Not wanting to provoke one of those ferocious Genesis-Exodus spiels, I had better record that Hattermer did a d-d-d damned good job. In the play, speaking as a Yankee, he threatened to cut off foreign aid; but we hope he continues to assist the Columbian Players next year.

There are bound to be scenes of high-

New SC officers thank supporters

Dear editor,

We, the officers of next year's Student Council, would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who supported us during the recent election campaign. We assure you that this vote of confidence will not be forgotten.

At this time, we would also like to publicly thank this year's Council for the cooperation they have shown in acquainting us with the functions of our new offices.

We are confident that we stand at the beginning of a highly successful year. The success which this year can bring will be assured if the spirit of cooperation we have thusfar been shown is continued in the future.

drama in a play dealing with the double-conversion, no less, of a wartime misanthrope. The Players did not handle these "tender" scenes nearly so capably as they did the humor scenes, and we do not have to delve into very profound analysis to see the reason why: such scenes by their very nature put the audience in a more perceptive mood than a humor scene does, and more delicacy and precision is required for an execution which is not awkward, which does not leave the audience with a feeling of discomfort.

More talent and experience is necessary for a cast to carry off well heart-throbbing passages, and the Players, who do not lack the talent, do lack the experience, the stage experience, that is (Lachie did not seem a tyro on one of those kisses, but doing it in front of five hundred people, one's parents included, is, after all, an entirely different matter).

But despite their inexperience, which was probably considerably mitigated by this performance, the Players staged an excellent production and one brimming with "values," as Lachie would say.

Pumas lose pair to State after splitting with Goshen

By CHARLES J. SCHUTTROW

Indiana State's power-hitting Sycamores shelled four St. Joseph's pitchers for 16 runs and 19 hits in two games and swept a doubleheader, 9-7 and 7-4, Saturday at Terre Haute's Memorial Stadium.

St. Joseph's took a 3-0 lead on Dick Renspie's three-run double in the first inning of game one, but Indiana State bounced back with three in their half of the inning and added two more in the second inning to take a 5-3 lead.

The Pumas, led by Bill Seidensticker's two-run triple, rallied for three runs in the fourth to regain the lead at 6-5 but Indiana State scored two in the fifth and two in the seventh inning to take a 9-6 lead. Pat O'Connor's sacrifice fly brought Tom Carroll home with the Pumas' final run in the ninth.

Art Voellinger, who yielded seven runs in five innings, lost his third game of the season.

The Sycamores jumped off with three runs in the second inning of game two and were never headed. After they added two runs in the fourth inning, St. Joseph's rallied to score four runs in the fifth. A double by O'Connor, a balk, a walk to Carroll, and successive singles by Ralph Piccirilli, Jim Crowley, George Post and Dick Renspie accounted for the runs.

However, Indiana State squelched the Puma threat with two unearned runs in the sixth. Two singles, a sacrifice bunt, a stolen base, and two errors led to the runs.

Tony Pacenti, first of four Puma pitchers, took the loss. Post and Renspie led St. Joseph hitters with two hits and one RBI apiece.

Bob Marx stretched his record to 4-1 in winning the first game at Goshen. Marx yielded six hits and two runs in going the seven inning route.

Dennis Woynerowski, making his first start of the year, was tagged for the loss of the second game. Jim Hunt pitched six innings in relief of Woynerowski, yielding two runs on five hits.

Jim Crowley paced the Puma attack with five hits in the two games.

Crowley leads Puma hitters with a .333 season average. Close behind are Post at .315 and Renspie at .312. The same three lead in hits with 25, 23 and 19 respectively, while Post leads in runs with 20, home runs with four and stolen bases with 12. Renspie leads in rbi's with 16, followed by Post with 15 and Decker with 14. Renspie also leads in doubles with four, while Post leads in triples with three.

Among the pitchers, Pacenti (3-3) has 21 strikeouts and a 2.00 earned run average with three complete games. Marx (4-1) has struck out 30 in compiling a 2.13 era and four complete games. Voellinger (5-3) has fanned 36 and hurled three full games while racking up a 3.28 era. Hunt (0-2) has struck out 22 and compiled a 3.57 era.

Varsity Views What does SJC athletic future hold?

By BOB ROSPENDA

Where is St. Joe's headed athletically? This is the question both students and alumni alike are asking after watching Puma athletic teams flounder in mediocrity for the past few years.

With the exception of the baseball and bowling teams, a St. Joe team with a winning season is becoming a rarity. Long gone are the glory days of 1955-56-57 when the Puma gridders dominated the ICC, capturing three consecutive football titles and gaining the NAIA national co-championship.

BOB ROSPENDA

At a school the size of St. Joe's, those days will probably never return and nobody can expect them to, but the question is: can, and will St. Joe produce WINNING teams in the future?

The question seems to boil down to the problem of whether St. Joe is out of its class in the ICC. We finished last in football this year, and last in basketball for the last two years. The ICC, especially in basketball, seems to be getting stronger every year. This is based not only on St. Joe's poor showing, but also on the impressive results of competition between ICC teams and non-conference squads.

It is possible, of course, that the good showing of the ICC in the last few years merely represents a peak in the normal up-down cycle of any small college conference, but this is not probable.

For example, as far as basketball is concerned, several ICC schools are planning to move into larger accommodations within the next few years, including Ball State, Indiana State, and Valparaiso. Butler and Evansville already have excellent accommodations.

New accommodations usually mean greater seating capacity. Greater seating capacity means potential revenue from ticket sales. Greater revenue means more money available for athletic scholarships, which eventually means a much higher caliber of ball for the ICC.

Where does this leave St. Joe with its limited budget for athletic scholarships? We are told that the future expansion plans for St. Joseph's college include the construction of a new fieldhouse. However, as far as is known, this is still in the unforeseeable future. At the recent discussion, "The Future of St. Joseph's College," it was stated that the college plans no changes in athletic policy within the foreseeable future. Whether this means more last place finishes in the ICC for St. Joe is hard to say.

Will we remain static in athletics, or will the picture brighten with future expansion plans? Will we be forced to drop football like so many other small Catholic colleges? Can we remain in the ICC and still cope with the competition?

These questions cannot be answered by anyone at this time, and only the ensuing years along with the future economic picture of St. Joseph's college will tell the whole story.

Tennis squad suffers four tough losses

The St. Joe tennis team, under the direction of student coach John Sorg, has met with stiff competition up to this date.

On April 17 the Pumas narrowly missed their first ICC victory by a score of 4-3, at Indiana State. Dan Sorg and Tom Miller won their single matches, (11-13, 6-1, 6-1) and (7-5, 4-6, 6-4) respectively. Sorg and John Luxem combined to win the only doubles (7-5, 3-6, 6-2).

At Valparaiso on April 26 the St. Joe netters spoiled Coach Sorg's birthday by losing 8-1. Dan Sorg and Luxem combined in doubles to score the only point for St. Joe, (0-6, 6-1, 6-4).

St. Joe, trying to avenge two earlier losses, was beaten at home on May 5 by Indiana State 4-3 and on May 7, by Butler 6-1.

The Geology club returned Easter Sunday from its annual spring field trip. The four day trip included the study of the economic geology of southern Illinois-Indiana, and Kentucky. The trip was highlighted by trips through underground fluorite and gypsum mines, as well as a guided tour through Mammoth Cave in Kentucky.

An exhibit, prepared by senior Jim Zofkie, is now on display in one of the display windows outside the auditorium. The exhibit demonstrates the geologist's use of aerial photos in photogeologic mapping and interpretation.

The last club meeting of the year will be the annual dinner meeting at Kanne's on May 16. Slides, taken at last summer's field camp in Silver City, New Mexico, will probably be shown.

Digamma Kappa Lambda's annual banquet will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Brook Country club. Cars are leaving from the bookstore at 7:15. Those members who have signed up should meet there. Rev. Joseph A. Sheeran, C.P.P.S., a former instructor and dean of men at St. Joseph's college, between 1944 and 1951, will celebrate his 25th anniversary as priest on Sunday, May 13.

At present Fr. Sheeran is resident chaplain at St. Bernard's Hospital, 6337 S. Harvard Ave., Chicago, a position assumed in 1952.

In addition to his duties as hospital chaplain he teaches ethics and religion at St. Bernard's School of Nursing, 6334 S. Harvard ave.

A native of Hardinsburg, Ky., he received his early schooling at St. Joseph's Academy and College. He finished his major studies for the priesthood at St. Charles Seminary, Carthagen, O., and was ordained May 6, 1937 by the Most Rev. Joseph Albers, Auxiliary Bishop of Cincinnati.

in Indianapolis. The tour lasted from 8:30 to 4:30 and a free dinner was served by the company. The group was accompanied by Mr. Mehall, faculty advisor.

New officers were elected at the Apr. 26 meeting of Digamma Kappa Lambda. Bob Sweeney is the new president, Jerry Meservey, vice president, Fran Faulkner, secretary and Don Hoffman, treasurer.

On Tuesday, May 1, 1962, the Engineering club took advantage of the free day to make their annual field trip. The group, traveled to LaGrange, Ill. to inspect the home plant of the electro-motive division of General Motors. This plant specializes in producing diesel engines for use on the nation's railroads.

Brother John Marling, club moderator, accompanied the 26 St. Joe engineering students who made the trip and were conducted on the tour of the plant's assembly area and laboratories.

After the tour the club was treated to a lunch, which was followed by a question and answer period.
